Question:

Thank-you for being available to take questions. I am 65 and have had an Ileostomy for 6 yrs. I have had Crohn's for 35 years and Ankylosing Spondylitis for 5 or more years. So, I face many indirect over-the-counter pharmaceutical costs that I try to struggle to manage. There has been a good deal of research and excitement about the value of probiotics.

Given that probiotics are both expensive and usually reside in the large intestine, is it worthwhile for me to take them? Has there been any research on this? What have been the results?

Response:

There is not much literature on the use of probiotics in the ostomate specifically. However, there may be a place in therapy to combat bacterial overgrowth in the small intestine. Bacterial overgrowth leads to fermentation of carbohydrates, which produces gases such as hydrogen and methane. These gases can lead to irritation of the intestinal lining and inhibition of proper nutrient absorption. More research is needed, but probiotics may be useful in controlling bacterial overgrowth and improving the health of the remaining intestinal lining.

Probiotics have been available for many years, but only recently have controlled clinical trials in IBD been done.

There is growing evidence that the functioning of the immune system systemically and at the intestinal tract level can be positively altered by probiotics. Available studies of probiotics have tried to determine the mechanisms by which they work. Proposed mechanisms of action of probiotics in the intestinal tract are: secretion of antimicrobial substances to prevent growth of “bad” bacteria, to block “bad” bacteria from attaching to the lining of the intestinal tract, to strengthen intestinal tract lining integrity, and to enhance the function of the immune system in fighting “bad” bacteria. Bad bacteria is the pathogenic (disease causing) bacteria, including E. coli, Salmonella, Shigella and Vibrio cholera. There have also been clinical trials that have shown no significant benefit, but also no negative side effects.

Although probiotic use is generally considered a safe intervention in healthy individuals, there are potential negative effects, especially for those who are immune-compromised. Immuno-compromised conditions include, but are not limited to immunodeficiency diseases, malignancy, pregnancy, etc. The potential negative effect for the immune-compromised individual is sepsis, which means that the probiotic could end up being a potential source of infection that could make its way into the bloodstream. Due to the potential for serious risk, I recommend consulting your physician before taking concentrated quantities of probiotics found in tablets and capsules.

Probiotics can be found at any retail/pharmacy, usually in the vitamin aisle.

There are many different options in tablet/capsule form that are not as expensive that are worth a try. There are other sources of probiotics such as in certain yogurts and dairy products. Make sure they say that they contain probiotics on the label because not all yogurts contain probiotics.

I would recommend that everyone consult their physician prior to starting a new medication, including probiotics, to weigh the risk vs. benefit.

Most clinical studies have not focused on the probiotics role in the ostomate, but they seem to be a viable new added option in treating IBD.

CARING FOR EXCORIATED SKIN

Via: S. Brevard FL, & Northwind News, Anchorage, AK

United Ostomy Association, Inc. Evansville, Indiana Chapter Re
-Route Volume 28, Number 10 July, 2001

When a large area of skin is excoriated, remove the appliance and let the skin air at least an hour daily. It might take a week or more of daily airing to heal.

Lock the door, take the phone off the hook, turn on the TV, or listen to radio call-in programs. Sit in a comfortable chair, or prop yourself up in bed, with a small table alongside, and a hairdryer plugged in.

Set up everything needed for changing your appliance within reach, so you don't have to turn over, or get up for anything. Protect furniture, clothing, or bedding with plastic sheets (large garbage bags, cut open, are fine), or old bath towels. Hang a smaller plastic garbage bag securely in a trash container, for soiled items.

Have plenty of tissues, a roll of toilet paper, and unsterile gauze squares for cleaning up. Don't use cotton balls, as they will snag on rough areas and cling to oozing areas. Have a small pan of water available, and a small bar of Ivory soap in a dish.

A kidney-shaped basin is needed to hold under the stoma to catch any eruptions. Don't read or write, as both hands will be needed. Place the basin under the pouch, remove and discard the appliance, and holding the basin under the stoma, gently wash skin and stoma with the soap and water. Rinse well, and pat or blow dry. Dunk clean gauze squares in the water, use and discard. Don't re-dunk them in the clean water!

Let skin air dry for twenty-minutes. Dab plain (not peppermint flavored) anti-acid liquid, such as Maalox, on the raw skin, blow dry on "cool" setting, or fan dry. Paint three layers, one every twenty minutes. Catch any eruptions before they soil the paint job, necessitating washing again.

When your time is up, apply your pouch as usual, right over the three-layer paint job. It will adhere to it, if it's dry.

Leading the way to healthier, independent lifestyles.

SHARING EXPERTISE

JOKES OF THE DAY

Choose the Right One

A young man excitedly tells his mother he's fallen in love and going to get married. He says, "Just for fun, Ma, I'm going to bring over 3 women and you try and guess which one I'm going to marry."

The mother agrees.

The next day, he brings three beautiful women into the house and sits them down on the couch and they chat for a while. He then says, "Okay, Ma, guess which one I'm going to marry."

She immediately replies, "The one in the middle."

"That's amazing, Ma. You're right. How did you know?"

"I don't like her."

Pull Over!

"Hey, you! Pull over!" shouted the traffic cop. The lady complied, and she was fined seventy-five dollars for not wearing a seatbelt.

She went home in great anxiety lest her husband, who always examined her checkbook, should learn of the incident.

Then inspiration struck and she marked the check stub, "One pullover: $75."

Frozen to Death

Two men waiting at the pearly gates strike up a conversation. "How'd you die?" the first man asks the second.

"I froze to death," says the second. "That's awful, how does it feel to freeze to death?" says the first.

"It's very uncomfortable at first, you get the shakes, and you get pains in all your fingers and toes. But eventually, it's a very calm way to go. You get numb and you kind of drift off, as if you're sleeping.

How did you die?" says the second. "I had a heart attack", says the first guy. "You see, I knew my wife was cheating on me, so one day I showed up at home unexpectedly.

I ran up to the bedroom, and found her alone, knitting.

I ran down to the basement, but no one was hiding there.

I ran up to the second floor, but no one was hiding there either.

I ran as fast as I could to the attic, and just as I got there, I had a massive heart attack and died."

The second man shakes his head. "That's so ironic" he says.

"What do you mean?" asks the first man.

"If you had only stopped to look in the freezer, we'd both still be alive."
